

International Data Policy Database (IDPD)

Access Partnership's IDPD compiles data protection laws and regulation into a single electronic database, accessible by your teams anywhere in the world and updated by our staff whenever the relevant policies and regulations change.

Our Approach

We offer a user-friendly online tool providing policy and regulatory overviews in up to 70 jurisdictions from one secure web page. Each country's entry can be tailored to your offering and commercial objectives.

For each country, the database provides information on:

- Data privacy regulation
- Lawful intercept
- Data protection requirements
- Privacy laws
- Data localisation requirements
- Public procurement
- Data protection officers
- Cybersecurity laws

Operations

The database is hosted on a wiki-based platform, making information easy to find and including inline links to the relevant laws, regulations, and guidelines. It is highly customisable and editable by secure users.

The product is managed by industry-certified experts, and our staff can provide strategic advice on best practice regarding data governance, privacy, and cybersecurity. We conduct on-going monitoring to ensure you always have access to up-to-date information.

It covers a wide-range of sectors:

- Oil and gas
- Finance and insurance
- Health
- Energy
- Defence
- Manufacturing
- Telecommunications
- Automotive
